

To Whom It May Concern:

I am privileged to write in support of Connor Boulet. I recently mentored Connor one-on-one in a small practical study group at the Christian Broadcasters Conference in Nashville. During that time I witnessed his tremendous growth and development. This development came not only in the area of radio and leadership but also in maturity and character as well.

Connor is a rare type of student who combines exceptional natural ability with a willingness and eagerness to learn. My mentorship team pushed Connor and his team to the outer edges of creativity and resourcefulness. And his team responded well to the challenge. Therefore, he can cope in any situation with any circumstances and deliver top-notch results in high-pressure situations.

During his time with me, Connor demonstrated a strong work ethic and a dedication to success. His efforts produced high-quality results for the team. He was very active in class; he took the initiative in the discussions. His presentation and assignment were done very well.

Connor is an energetic, enthusiastic student that loves media. He is also responsible and can handle the pressure of deadlines very well. He has an extremely amiable personality and manages people within his team with thoughtful consideration and deep respect. Being honest and hardworking, he demonstrates the best of behavior and excellent personality traits that leaders should possess.

I firmly believe that his perseverance, intellectual ability and enthusiasm for learning and working are qualities that should help him well in his future jobs. Connor is undoubtedly the type of student that has the potential for success at any level. His determined efforts, combined with his strong work ethic and ability to self-assess and self-improve, are recipes for his success in the years to come. I wholeheartedly recommend him for any future endeavor.

Respectfully,

Josué Villa
